

Moonguyen: A Two-Way Tale of Adoption

Inspired by the real-life struggle of Curtis and Trang Webster to bond as father and daughter, Moonguyen tells the story of self-absorbed basketball coach Randy Hartman and his newly-adopted ten year-old Vietnamese daughter, Cam, as they collide over questions of culture, language and, ultimately, what it truly means to be family. The voices of Randy and Cam alternate as each recalls the first several months of a very bumpy road to familial love. Moonguyen captures the frustrations, the humor and the drama of older-child adoption, with a heavy overlay of the unique challenges posed by international adoption. In a time when our cultural understanding of the family is evolving and expanding, Moonguyen presents a perspective on family which is entirely realistic but never cynical. Through the eyes of Randy and Cam, watch an unlikely bond of love grow in the midst of conflict, confusion and serious misunderstanding.
